WEST CHESTER, PA.

PHILADELPHIA:

UNITED STATES STEAM-POWER JOB PRINTING OFFICE, LEDGER BUILDING.

1849.

PREFACE.

A new edition of the Catalogue of Morris & Stokes' Garden and Nursery, West Chester, Pa., containing many additions and improvements, is now offered to the public.

In the list of Fruits, those varieties only have been enumerated which are now ready for sale, without reference to many others worked the present season, some of which have only lately arrived from England, and have never been fruited in the United States.

By our arrangements in this country and in Europe, we shall be able to keep the public advised of all new and valuable Fruits as they appear, and which will be tested immediately, on standard bearing trees, in their specimen orchard connected with the nursery.

Every pains has been taken, by the personal attention of one of the Proprietors to the budding and grafting of Fruits, to ensure certainty and genuineness of the kinds, all buds and grafts having either been obtained from bearing trees, or direct offsprings therefrom.

The list of Ornamental Trees and Shrubs, Hardy Perpetual Roses, and other flowering plants, already embraces most of the best varieties, and will be annually increased. The bloom of the latter is tested in open ground to ensure correctness. Every exertion will be made to render the establishment complete and worthy of confidence.

The Nursery is at all times open to the public, excepting on the first day of the week, who are invited to call and examine the assortment.

To those residing at a distance, it may be well to state that the flourishing borough of West Chester is located about twenty-two miles West of Philadelphia, and four hundred and eighty feet above tide-water. The soil is a good strong loam, and the exposures highly favorable to nursery culture. Trees are delivered in Philadelphia, free of cost to the purchaser, and shipped from thence to any part of the Union, subject only to the small charge of portage through the city. Great care is taken in packing, so as to carry safely, for which a reasonable charge will be made. Access, by railroad, from Philadelphia, twice every day. Orders by mail must be accompanied with the cash, or a satisfactory reference in Philadelphia. Orders left with J. P. H. COATES, at his Seed Store, 49 Market street, will receive prompt attention.

MORRIS & STOKES,

West Chester, Pa.

SHORT DIRECTIONS FOR PLANTING.

Remove all bruised or injured roots, by cutting them from the under side with a sharp knife. Dig the holes at least twice as large as the roots extend, so as to allow them easy access in their starting to the loose earth, which should be finely pulverized; when the hole is half filled, pour in a few gallons of water, which has a tendency to settle the earth and fill up vacancies. Be careful to avoid lifting the tree up, while filling in, which tends to give the roots a vertical and unnatural position. Let the soil in contact with the roots be the surface soil first thrown out, or rich loam, obtained expressly, would be better. Leaf mould, from the woods, is excellent. Let no manure be put into the hole, around the root, which is apt to induce decay. If any is applied, let it be on the surface, to be carried down and distributed by rains. The fall of the year is a suitable time for surface manuring round trees. Let the trees be well staked and tied up, to prevent being shaken or disturbed by the winds. After culture and periodical judicious pruning are also important. As a general rule, orchards should be kept ploughed and cultivated to ensure fine fruit and good crops. Where this is not practicable, trees should be dug round and kept free from grass and weeds.
